Time: 6:30 pm (social) 7:00 pm (meeting start time)
Where: SC Power Team Office – 1201 Main Street, Suite 1710,
Columbia, SC 29201 or Zoom (link below)
Cost: No charge for paid members or first-time attendees
Speaker: Rich Evans, Senior Vice-President of Technical Functions, GES
Topic: “Ethics for Environmental Professionals”

Ethical behavior builds trust between professional and their clients, coworkers, and others. Ethics serve as a morale compass in our decision-making and actions. This presentation is designed for those with professional license(s) and those on a path to licensure. The presenter will highlight industry ethics history and expectations, introduce artificial intelligence, and engage the audience with a variety of case studies. Each case study will presentation a situation, the ethical dilemma, and findings.

Rich Evans (GES, Inc.) is senior vice president of technical functions and provides senior technical support and manages GES’ corporate technical functions team that includes engineering, hydrogeology, air quality, small unmanned aircraft systems, and data management and visualization. He also leads GES’ Quality Program, Emerging Contaminants team, and is a member of GES’ corporate environmental, social, and governance (ESG) team. Rich initiated GES’ annual internal professional ethics training and continues to prepare and lead the annual presentations.
